

My interest in nursing as a career

Submitted by

Affiliation

Date

My interest in nursing as a career

"What attracted me to this job is humanism, empathy, love of relationships". For me, the profession combines both technical and interpersonal skills. It requires scientific rigor but at the same time, human qualities. My future dream is to be a nurse. Nurses and doctors take care of people's lives and do not afford to fail. It is a thing. Even small mistakes can be sued by the patient or liable for long periods of time. Or to be affected. It is a very risky job compared to many other jobs. In addition, it's a job that also requires some manual skill, dexterity, organization because it is multi-tasking. It must also love the technical gesture and being able to handle fairly complex materials, even if according to the services, the gestures are more or less technical. If it used to be assumed that a nurse is only the assistant of a doctor, he is now an independent specialist who is qualified to provide nursing care to patients. There are certain reasons that I want to become nurse for example;

First, I want to help people. To help those who are in pain or some problem and who need empathy and care.

Secondly, it is useful for me in life. If I have a family, children, I can offer them the most basic medical care. I will be able to take care of my parents professionally - because they too grow old quickly.

The nurse is a qualified doctor's assistant in all areas of his work. Today the nurse is the "legs of a legless", "eyes of a blind man", support for a child, a source of knowledge and trust for a young mother, the mouth of those "who are too weak and immersed in yourself to talk" (W. Henderson).

Objects of professional activity of a nurse Patients and his environment; Healthy population; Method of diagnostic and treatment, prophylactic and rehabilitation assistance. Implement preventive measures; Participation in medical diagnostic, prophylactic and rehabilitation processes; providing first aid medical care in emergency situations and extreme circumstances. Types of professional activities of a nurse

The former name of this profession is "Sister of Mercy". Grace and sympathy for someone else's pain is one of the most important qualities of a nurse. Attention, accuracy and responsibility are necessarily linked to this. Proper coordination of movements is also important (this is especially important for operating, procedural, nurses in the neighborhood), good memory and the desire for professional growth. Good health and endurance. The nurse must have everything in the nurse, including her appearance (fit, cleanliness, hairstyle, facial expression). These are the reasons that force me to become nurse.